THE JONES CENTER AT ICHAUWAY
SEASONAL FORESTRY TECHNICIAN

The Jones Center at Ichauway invites applications for a Seasonal Research Technician II position. We will be filling this 3 month position beginning in May 2020. The technician will assist in assessments of forest structure and growth for a project examining silviculturally mediated forest composition and structure in future climate change scenarios; assessment of fuels and fire effects on soil nutrient cycling; and wind damage measurements. Time will be split between field and laboratory work. Field work will include use of GPS equipment and data loggers, and making basic forest measurements (including DBH, height, age, basal area and ground cover). Laboratory work will include physical and chemical sample preparation, and data entry.

The 29,000 acre research center is located approximately 30 miles south of Albany, Georgia. The Center’s research, education, and conservation programs focus on ecology and natural resource management. The site includes 16,000 acres of longleaf pine woodlands, over 1,000 acres of wetlands and 26 miles of two stream and river ecosystems. For more information visit our web site: www.jonesctr.org

Ability to conduct physical activity in the field under hot, humid, and buggy conditions; to follow instructions with attention to detail; and to work well in small groups. Computer experience and driver’s license are required, and familiarity or experience with southeastern vegetation and plant communities is desirable. GIS experience is a plus.
